

DAILY SICKNESS ALLOWANCE INSURANCE FOR PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALLERS WITH STATUTORY HEALTH INSURANCE

Overview of the daily sickness allowance insurance

Why do I need daily sickness allowance insurance?

As a professional, you receive good medical support in the event of injuries and illnesses. But what if it takes longer to get better? In that case, as a professional, you will have income gaps that you can cover with an Allianz daily sickness allowance. This will enable you to concentrate fully on your recovery and give you optimal protection.

Loss of earnings due to illness

Example:

Tim tears his cruciate ligament in a fall during training. Following an operation involving a stay in hospital, he is subsequently treated as an outpatient. He is on sick leave for the 6-month healing process.

There is a shortfall from the 7th week.

Professional with statutory health insurance

Income in the event of illness:

- Continued remuneration or sickness benefit from the health insurance

¹ The sickness allowance of the SHI is limited to a maximum of EUR 3,491 per month. If your income is above the contribution assessment threshold of the health insurance, your income gap will increase.

How does daily sickness allowance insurance work?

Daily sickness allowance compensates for the loss of income suffered in the event of long-term illness or during statutory maternity leave. You personally determine the amount of your daily sickness allowance. This allows you to safeguard your net income, just in case. Get healthy again with no financial worries.

Sample calculation: Professional with statutory health insurance and sickness allowance entitlement from the 7th week
